

PROFILE

Fleet Architects was founded by Jaime Bishop and Richard Henson, who have worked together since 2004. Jaime was formerly the Associate Design Director and Richard a Senior Design Associate with Steffian Bradley Architects.

Fleet has been formed to pursue high quality design in the public and social sectors, including healthcare.

Fleet Architects consists of a small, highly skilled and motivated workforce. We aim to be market leaders and inspirational thinkers who can shape the future's public buildings and civic spaces.

We have considerable experience in tackling complicated and challenging design problems from site conditions to planning negotiations which can often stall projects in their early stages. This will often include addressing sensitive planning or listed building issues, working with complex client bodies that may consist of several government agencies and appraising awkward sites that can place a strain on the procurement process.

We have a proven track record of developing outstanding design with the desire to maintain quality throughout the delivery process.

Working predominantly in the public sector, we seek to elevate common materials and systems to the enchanting, and employ the seemingly everyday and banal in a challenging, imaginative manner.

Our proposals draw form from their location, using references such as material, scale or rhythm to inform and reinforce the permanence and relevance of our ideas.

Fleet design buildings to add a new layer to the palimpsest of the village, town, park or city, adeptly making use of historical reference to celebrate the identity of a location without resorting to pastiche.

Our buildings are designed to be used: lived in, worked in and healed in. They are for the present, the future and the past of a place and the people that engage in them, not merely the designer at the instance when the hoarding is demounted.

CAD SYSTEM

Fleet are experienced users of AutoCAD and Microstation systems and are developing REVIT BIM methods with ADB compatibility to be implemented on projects in 2010.
